APPRENTICE / TRAINING COMPANY VOICES

The Voice from a Training Company

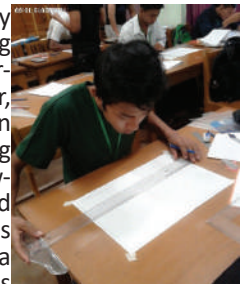

Our factory has sent apprentices to CVT Myanmar every year. We see many benefits not only for the factory but also for the apprentices. After finishing the training, their skills and ideas are better than before the training. They follow the rules and work more disciplined than before and they are more aware of and understand safety issues in the workplace as well. In addition, they are very good at social communication and have a leadership mind-set. Because of those things, we are confident to appoint various tasks to them and we will continue to send apprentices to CVT in the future and we thank CVT Myanmar.

Voice from an Apprentice

My name is Mg Aung Zaw Nyunt; I am attending the metal worker course Batch 14. I am very pleased to attend this course. With a certificate from CVT, I no longer have to think about going abroad for work. A certificate is important to find a job but the more important thing is to understand the nature of your work and to know what you have to do. Before I attended CVT Myanmar, I was working as a trainee under the supervision of a mechanical engineer and I could only learn practical but no theoretical skills there. Before joining CVT Myanmar, I couldn't read the drawing samples I received from customers. Now after attending CVT, I can clearly understand those drawings. I am very satisfied because we do not only get vocational skills but also learn about safety and many other things. Actually, CVT is not only preparing us to be skillful workers but also teaches us how to handle problems which we are facing in our daily lives, how to be a better follower and a good leader. If we want to start a business, we learn how to develop a strategic plan for the business we want to start. If we want to produce a new product, we learn what to consider and to do first and how to improve our personal skills, like how to behave in society and the community and so on. Therefore, I am very pleased and thank all the teachers from CVT and CVT Myanmar.
